

CLAY MACK

Skills DB / LB

Mack has trained a laundry list of defenders, from pros like Jalen Mills and JaCorey Sheppard, to the collegians like Marshon Lattimore and Jalen Jones, to top tier high school recruits who just signed like Anthony Hines and Jeffery Okudah.

Trying to remember every single defensive back trained by Mack is an exercise in futility, the names just keep coming and coming until your brain is overwhelmed. It wasn't always this way, though. At one time, Clay Mack hoped to be drafted himself.

Mack is himself a graduate of Dallas Kimball, and a high school All-American. He went D1 at Mississippi State and had a great career with pro aspirations until he tore his groin off the bone during his senior campaign.

Mack doesn't just train the tangibles, which is what makes him what he is. He also trains the attitude, the moxie, the swagger of the individual defensive back. Where you're out there on an island, confidence can be everything, and Mack will quickly build the drive in the individual to be a successful player, with the skills and attitude that make the drive count.

All in all, Clay Mack is a mentality. You can't turn off around him, he'll notice it immediately. No rep goes unnoticed, no bad twitch of the hips or pursuit angle will go unseen. It's the mentality that makes him an elite level trainer, and it's the mentality that makes his players what they are, which is top level at whatever they do.

3 FIRST ROUND PICKS 6 DRAFTED IN TOP 3 ROUNDS 13 PLAYERS DRAFTED

- Jalen Mills
- Sidney Jones
- Tashaun Gipson
- Shamiel Gary
- Josh Aubrey
- Marqueston Huff
- JaCorey Shepherd
- Jamal Adams
- Tre'Davious White
- Marshon Lattimore
- Cordrea Tankersley
- Davontae Harris
- Dante Jackson
- Josh Jackson
- Obo Okoronkwo
- Deshon Elliot
- Rahim Moore